I'll start with the good. There's a pleasant vibe of "building the resistance from almost nothing" similar to XCOM2. The story is interesting, even if hard to follow because of the time travel, paradoxes, multiple timelines, flashbacks etc. Music is fitting, graphics are passable (the orange suit evokes some cheesy spy movie connotations). Controls are adequately responsive and levels restart quickly once failed. The story is more fleshed out compared to similar titles by this company.

The game is short. If it stopped at that I would have no problem with it. Do Normal once, bye. But this game attempts to make up for its lack of content with difficult achievements, which is the greatest design sin in my eyes. Time attack times are simply unreasonable. Speedrunning is required - and I abhor all speedrunning. And even completing a level on Hardcore or Murderous - nevermind the time - can be a huge chore. Enemies react almost instantly, weapon drops are random and rare. Restarting countless times and counting on luck becomes a strategy after a while. The quality of writing is pretty weak, as if the writer was struggling with vocabulary.

This game is not entirely bad-bad. But out of the five twin-stick shooters 10tons currently have on Steam, this one is undoubtedly the weakest. I had fun playing through the story but trying to get the last achievements is a torture, one the developer is not entitled to inflict because the quality of the product is not high enough. Not recommended.
